SUSSEX

It seems strange to call Sussex 'wine country', but as we sit in Ockenden Manor in the Heart of Sussex, we are surrounded by vines and some of the most passionate and forward thinking winemakers in the world. Our soils are similar to those of Champagne and Burgundy, while recent climate change has meant that the warmer, longer summers have allowed classic grape varieties to flourish. Regularly challenging the orthodoxy of the established wine world, Sussex Wines are now stepping onto the world's stage, not as an interesting sideshow, but as fine and sought after wines in their own right. At Ockenden we are proud to support local wine producers, as we have done for over a decade.

Winemaker Spotlight – Dermot Sugrue

It would be very difficult to describe the history and success of Sussex Wine without mentioning the name of Dermot Sugrue. Having studied winemaking at Plumpton College, Dermot has honed his skills in Bordeaux and Champagne, before returning to help revolutionise Sussex wine. Starting first at Nyetimber in 2003, Dermot is now firmly based at Wiston Estate where he is busier than ever. Not only does he make the award-winning Wiston Estate range, his own award-winning wine Sugrue-Pierre, he also acts as a contract winemaker for several others. With something of a Midas touch, nearly every wine he makes is celebrated by critics and consumers alike, having achieved a Gold Award at Nyetimber for his 2003 Vintage, his 2010 'The Trouble with Dreams' scored the highest rating ever awarded to an English wine by Decanter magazine. Wiston's vintage rosé has been listed in the top ten best sparkling rosés in the world by Drinks Business and his Blanc de Blancs was just voted the best English Blanc de Blancs by the Champagne and Sparkling Wine World Championships. Below is a selection of wines Dermot has made, they are quite simply the best wines coming out of Sussex

BRUT

Brut refers to the dryness of the sparkling wine, with Brut wines having been standard in Champagne for over a century now. Champagne is traditionally made with Chardonnay, Pinot Noir and Pinot Meunier. All of the wines listed below, apart from Bluebell, use the same three grapes to make their wines.

601	Bluebell Vineyard, Hindleap, Seyval Blanc 	2013	48
602	Ridgeview Estate, Bloomsbury	NV	55
604	Nyetimber, Classic Cuvée 	2010	75

BLANC DE BLANC

Blanc de blancs refer to wines made solely from the Chardonnay grape, they can often be lighter in style, but high in finesse.

605	Bolney Estate, Blanc de Blancs 	2013	53

BLANC DE NOIRS

Blanc de Noirs refers to a sparkling wine made in the traditional method solely from the two red grapes of champagne – Pinot Noir and Pinot Meunier. The Ridgeview Estate, where this wine comes from, has had a close working relationship with Ockenden Manor for over a decade, and we are proud to continue that to this day.

607	Ridgeview Estate, Blanc de Noirs 	2013	70

DEMI-SEC

Demi-sec means 'half dry' and like brut, refers to the sweetness of the wine. While not as popular today, a demi-sec can be enjoyed on its own, or preferably with food such as a light dessert or as a perfect pairing with sautéed foie gras.

While Sussex is dominated by sparkling wines, its still wines are also phenomenal. The Albourne Estate Cellar Selection was sent for us to try and we loved it so much we made it exclusive to our restaurant. While Bolney Estate's Pinot Gris made headlines by becoming the first English Wine to be served at Wimbledon in its 138-year history.

CHAMPAGNE

There is no more perfect way to set the mood for the evening than to welcome a guest into your house with a reassuringly chilled glass of Champagne. Why not begin your night the same way with us, as you relax with your guests, we take care of everything else. Below you will find a list of hand-picked Champagnes to help you begin your night in the right way. At Ockenden Manor we have tried to focus on grower champagnes, both for their sheer quality and value for money.

Wine Spotlight – Gosset

Maison Gosset is the oldest wine house in Champagne, having been founded in Aÿ in 1584. As a Champagne Houses Gosset is the bridge between small boutique grower champagnes and the large multinationals you find in the supermarkets. While they don't grow their own grapes, Gosset is a small house that works closely with its growers to produce in the region of one million bottles a year (to put it in perspective Moët produces close to thirty million). Their commitment to their wines means that they age them longer than the required standard, focusing on quality rather than quantity.

The Brut Excellence is Gosset's entry level champagne and is the only one in their range to undergo malolactic fermentation. With a higher percentage of Pinot Noir, the Brut Excellence has the classic yeasty nose with a creamy finish on the palate, very dry, but not acidic.

419	Brut Excellence	NV	45	65	165

All of Gosset's wines, apart from the Brut Excellence, are bottled in the antique bottle and do not undergo malolactic fermentation, preserving the malic acidity that keeps the fruit fresh for longer, allowing the wines to age and become more complex. The Grande Réserve pairs incredibly well with salmon dishes, while the Blanc de blancs is the perfect aperitif made from only Chardonnay, a wine that is oozing with finesse. The 15 Ans is a blend of vintages going back fifteen years, with only 15,000 bottles produced, it is a wonderfully complex rare wine.

BORDEAUX

Bordeaux is perhaps the most famous wine producing region in the world, with such sort after names as: Lafite-Rothschild, Mouton Rothschild, Latour, Margaux, Haut-Brion, Petrus, Cheval-Blanc and many, many more. The region is largely split into two by the Gironde Estuary that provides us with the Left Bank and Right Bank distinctions. The Left Bank wines are usually Cabernet Sauvignon dominant, many of which feature in the original 1855 classification, with all first-growth Bordeaux originating on the Left Bank. This should not, however, belie the quality of the Right Bank, whose Merlot dominant wines, offer a silky smooth style and are often some of the most expensive produced in Bordeaux. Here at Ockenden we have tried to strike a balance between the easily championed, but steeply priced top growths from the region, with lesser known gems that we have come across and enjoyed over the years.

BURGUNDY

My favourite region in the wine-making world is Burgundy. Yes, typical and boring, as I'm sure every other sommelier says the same. So how to explain why it is my favourite region? Burgundy is quite simply the reason I fell in love with wine in the first place. I would not be doing this job were it not for the likes of the wines coming from this region. The sheer variance in expression you can find from two grapes is astounding and the quality can be second-to-none. Trying to understand the region on the other hand can be a completely different matter, especially given the laws of inheritance. In very few other places can you find strips of vines belonging to different members of the same family all producing different styles (and quality!) of wine. For this reason, anyone wanting to delve into Burgundy seriously has to find producers they know and trust. Great vintages won't mask poor quality wine making, just as great wine makers won't let poor vintages spoil their produce. Great wine makers make great wine and in Burgundy finding those trusted producers makes all the difference. Below you'll find some of the producers that we at Ockenden have come to know and love over the past few decades and would recommend without hesitation.

BEAUJOLAIS

Often overlooked or left at the bottom of Burgundy, Beaujolais is a region that deserves its own space in a wine list, not quite within Burgundy, but certainly not far from it either. It is a region that received a poor reputation for its notorious Beaujolais-nouveau in the 1980's. Yet, the ten Crus of Beaujolais have been making great wine of interesting complexity throughout, while never receiving the same level of attention. It is for this reason that some of the best value wines come from this region. Made from the thin-skinned Gamay grape, these low tannic wines tend to be vibrant and juicy when young and rich and gamey with age – perfect for British cuisine.

LOIRE

The Loire River is the longest river in France and while the winemaking areas in the Loire Valley are only two thirds the size of Bordeaux, the sheer diversity of the wines produced in this region make it one of the most exciting in France. The home of some of the finest Sauvignon Blanc immortalised by Sancerre and Pouilly Fumé; the spiritual home of Chenin Blanc with the dry and off-dry styles of Vouvray and the sweeter wines of the Coteaux du Layon; the herbaceous Cabernet Francs of Saumur, Bourgueil and Chinon; the crisp Melon de Bourgogne of Muscadet and the stunning rosés and sparkling wines available only hints at how rich a wine region this truly is. For a region two thirds the size of Bordeaux, the Loire produces some of the finest wines in France, offers a great variety of styles, while maintaining quality, and does all of this at a great price. We are quite simply in love with the Loire Valley here at Ockenden.

RHÔNE

The Rhône Valley is divided between the distinctly different North and South. The Northern Rhône has a cooler, mediterranean climate, being cooled by the Mistral wind that blows down from the Central Massif. The sole red grape of the region is Syrah, while the whites are made from Viognier, Marsanne and Rousanne – the latter two often blended together. The Southern Rhône, with its warmer mediterranean climate, is famous for Châteauneuf-du-Pape, made from a blend of up to nineteen grapes – although mainly Grenache-Syrah-Mouvedre. Other notable appellations in the Southern Rhône that produce similar wines include Lirac, Vacqueyras and Gigondas.

REGIONAL FRANCE

The southern region of France is the largest wine producing region in the country and for a long time was producing more wine than the entire of the United States. Bergerac is a region that lies just outside of Bordeaux and is a thrifty alternative to the famous chateaux. From the Languedoc, the red wines of Corbières and Minervois pair beautifully with hearty and rich meat dishes, while it is harder to find such a pleasurable combination of easy-drinking and fish-friendly white wine than those made from the Picpoul grape. Certainly a region we feel should be explored more.

ALSACE

Sommeliers often wax lyrical about Burgundy, but press them for the white varietal they couldn't live without and they will almost certainly say Riesling. And it is here, protected by the Vosges mountains, that the noble Riesling and its aromatic kin reach their perfect form. Pure, unoaked, fruit-forward, solid structure, balanced acidity – food wines. Dry Rieslings are perfect as an aperitif, with fish and pork, while the off-dry Gewürztraminer is stunning with foie gras dishes.

GERMANY & AUSTRIA

As we wander down the page from Alsace to Germany we can rejoice, safe in the knowledge that this means one thing: more Riesling. It is the Mosel in Germany that is most famous for making Riesling, specifically lower-alcohol Rieslings than those of Alsace, but with same level of fruit concentration. If you like this style of wine, you might also consider Clare Valley Riesling from Australia. Austria is home to a grape that very few people have heard of, but that everyone should be drinking - Grüner Veltliner. The stunning white wine made from this grape is a dream pairing for food. Dry, with a hint of spice, these wines mix both body and finesse.

SPAIN

Spain is a country that has experienced one of the strongest revivals of winemaking in recent history. A mixture of old vines, young winemakers and modern technology has made this region both one to seek great value wines, but also great quality. A region that has long been dominated by the name of Rioja, experimental winemakers are focusing on old vine Garnacha and blending international varieties to great success. Not to mention their fish friendly white wines. If you're looking for something to go with slow cooked meat, look no further than their big, bold, fruity Garnachas. For a nuanced white to match your scallops there is no more of a perfect pairing than Albarino. Enjoy these wines before the market catches up with the sheer value they offer!

ITALY

Italy is one of the largest wine producing countries in the world and also one of the most diverse. The wines of the South of Italy reflect the heat of the region, with the reds being bigger and jammier, while the whites shine as fruity and elegant – perfect for seafood. In the centre of Italy, the rule-breaking Toscanians made themselves famous for breaking away from the Chianti Classico rulings, producing wines known as 'Super-Tuscans' from 100% Sangiovese or blending them with international varieties such as Cabernet Sauvignon to produce, now, cult wines such as Sassicaia and Ornellaia. More famous and true to its home is the noble grape of Nebbiolo, at home in the Barolos and Barbarescos of Piemonte. With a plethora of wines available to a consumer, navigating this country can be difficult – fortunately we have picked a mixture of classics and lesser known gems to ensure that all the wines here live up to the great winemaking reputation of Italy.

Wine Spotlight - Gaja

"Cabernet is to John Wayne, as Nebbiolo is to Marcello Mastroianni. Cabernet has a strong personality, open, easily understood and dominating. If Cabernet were a man, he would do his duty every night in the bedroom, but always in the same way. Nebbiolo, on the other hand, would be the brooding, quiet man in the corner, harder to understand but infinitely more complex." – Angelo Gaja

Angelo Gaja is a world famous winemaker, having revolutionised the wines of Piemonte when he took over his family's estates. While known to break the rules and bend tradition, his dedication to his craft and love of his native country are evident in the stunning wines he produces. A living legend in the wine world, it is a pleasure to offer a selection of his wines here:

NEW ZEALAND

New Zealand wine has exploded onto the UK market like no other region. Unknown to most is that it all started with an Englishman named Kevin Judd. Employed as the winemaker for a small production called Cloudy Bay, he went on to define the New Zealand Sauvignon Blanc style that we have all become accustomed to. This involved a very complex wine that had under ripe grassy notes, fruit forward ripeness and a hint of overripe tropical fruit.

Unfortunately many lesser producers have sought to capitalise on this success and produced inferior wines dominated by the overripe flavours and lacking all complexity, while lining the shelves of the supermarkets today. Now independent, Kevin Judd operates Greywacke, making wines in the style that he intended. He bottles his wine at Dog Point vineyard, owned by his winemaking contemporaries at Cloudy Bay when it first made waves in the wine world. The wines below are, to us, representative of the legacy that Kevin Judd and the great winemakers of New Zealand have to offer; complex, nuanced – delicious.

AUSTRALIA

Australia was once (in)famous for its wine, but like a wine child that has matured it is now producing some of the most interesting and sort after wines. Long gone are the days of over-oaked Chardonnay and steroid-enlarged Shiraz. Australia's wines have matured into exciting wines that reflect the greatness of this winemaking region. Below you will find what we at Ockenden think are the best examples Australia has to offer. Choose the subtly oaked Chardonnays to pair with seafood, Rieslings to rival the Mosel, and reds to challenge those of Burgundy and the Rhône Valley to tackle both delicate and rich meat dishes; or alternatively ask one of the wine team to help pair a wine with your food.

Wine Spotlight – Riposte by Tim Knapstein

"If Ned Kelly is synonymous with Australian history, then Tim Knapstein is synonymous with Australian wine. He is simply a wine god"

Tim Knapstein first came to fame with his wines under the labels of Enterprise and Tim Knapstein's Wines in Clare Valley. Unfortunately, as with so many wineries in Australia, Tim was bought out by a multi-national and forced to choose between making wines he no longer believed in or parting from the winery and wines he had built and grown throughout his life.

Not one to compromise his principles, Tim left behind Clare Valley and the winery that still bears his name and set up on his own. Unable to use his own name on his wines and having seen what the corporatised world of wine in Australia was beginning to look like, Tim decided to create wines of greater complexity and higher quality as an answer to this – his response was Riposte. A 'riposte' is a retort, or in fencing a quick counter thrust, which explains why each of his wines is named after a dueling weapon. If the wines are anything to go by, it's about time the Australian wine world listened up!

USA

The USA has a long and rich connection to wine and winemaking. Thomas Jefferson was famously partial to the great Chateaux of Bordeaux. The wines of the US, however, didn't seriously enter onto the world stage until the Judgement of Paris, 1976. Organised by the English Wine Merchant Steven Spurrier, and famously documented in the film Bottleshock, the wines of America – and in particular the Cabernets and Chardonnays of Napa, California – out-performed the finest wines of France in a blind tasting led by the leading lights of the French wine world. Wine producers such as Stag's Leap, Ridge and Château Montelena went from unknown entities to global superstars. A repeat blind tasting of the same wines was performed in 2006, thirty years after the original tasting, with the confidence that the longevity of the French wines would outperform the Yankee counterparts – once again the French were left with a sour taste in their mouths. At Ockenden we have searched high and low to give you both the stars of the USA and their undervalued brothers and sisters, which represent the glory of '76.

SOUTH AMERICA

South America has grown into an acclaimed wine region like no other. Chile is becoming as synonymous with Sauvignon Blanc as New Zealand and its adopted national grape – Carménère is now flourishing on the UK markets. Indeed the region shows such promise that a number of famous French winemaking families have bought land – not least the owners of Lafite-Rothschild and Mouton-Rothschild. While still a region in which to find good value, the market is taking note, with Santa Rita Estate's Casa Real breaking the record for the price a Chilean Wine sold in a restaurant. Argentina and Malbec are two names that go together in everyone's mind, often forgetting that Malbec originates in Cahors in France. Often overlooked Uruguay offers Torrontes, a wine with the sweet nose of its Muscat cousin, but is incredibly dry and fish friendly. Meanwhile the Tannat is a big tannic wine that has been softened by oak, think aged Bandol!

SOUTH AFRICA

We all seem to know where the greatest wines in the world inevitably come from – Sussex; ...and France (sometimes). But asked to choose a country other than France for the greatest wines in the world it would be a hard-pressed competition in which South Africa may actually come out as the unlikely winner. It has had more of a radical development and improvement than Spain, and can stand toe-to-toe with many of the offerings from Australia, New Zealand and USA. Having perfected a number of single varietal wines, the future of South African wines seems to be in its high-quality blends. This is a region that is constantly re-inventing itself and always with better wines, making it perhaps one of the most interesting regions in the world to watch right now and certainly a trendsetter for the future.
